Background Information

To minimise personal contacts, the government temporarily closed the most of retail and facilities providing services, except of those selling foodstuff, food for pets and health-care aids, veterinary corps, pharmacies, drugstores, posts, banks and insurance agencies, telecom operators, catering establishments, gasoline stations and tobacco and printed media shops. Restaurants, fast-foods and canteens can provide only take-away food, usually lunch menu. Consequently some other employers suffered from the crisis as well.

Content of measure

In order to reduce negative impacts of the adopted COVID-19 related measures on concerned employers, the government decided to implement changes in the Act No. 461/2003 on social insurance, which regulates compulsory payments of employers into the insurance funds. Amendments to the Social insurance act postponed the deadline for compulsory payments of employers to insurance funds. According to the amendments, any employer and self-employed paying compulsory contributions to health and pension insurance funds and of which revenue from business decreased by at least 40% can pay its contribution due for March 2020 till 31 July 2020. If needed, the government can prolong the adopted deadline.

Use of measure

It is assumed, that the measure can concern small and medium size as well as large employers. To reduce the pressure on the employers' cash flow, it is possible to apply the schedule of due dates. Implementation of the measure started just now and presently, no information is available about the number of employers, which applied the measure.
