Background information

This expansion of the Qredits system is part of the package of emergency measures to deal with the corona virus. This was a package of several measures which have been taken to combat the corona virus and its effects.

The Qredits microfinancing system is an existing government sponsored financier. This easing of the interest rates is part of the package of emergency measures by the national government. This microcredits fund is more a permanent feature that is being temporally expanded as part of the package of emergency measures by the national government.

Content of measure

The Qredits microcredit fund is a governmental fund which provides financing as well as support and coaching to micro and small enterprises which face challenges gaining financing via more traditional avenues (such as bank loans). Users of the fund tend to be small, notably micro-enterprises and are often run by individuals with a poorer socio-economic or migrant background.

With the aim of supporting small entrepreneurs who are hit by corona measures, Qredits has relaxed some of the financing conditions. Small entrepreneurs can delay their loan payments for up to 6 months and the interest rate will be kept at 2%. The national government supports Qredits in this with a maximum of 6 million €.
