Case created	10 April 2020 (updated 22 April 2020)

Background Information

For the period of the epidemic, some labour regulations, such as rules on working time, breaks, and rest periods, cease to apply for public employees. On the other hand, public servants exposed to health hazards or overburden have the right to bonus of up to 100% of their hourly rate. Measures cover all public employees and are temporary in nature, lasting only for the time of the epidemic from 13 March to 31 May

Content of measure

A public employee can be temporarily assigned another job without his or her consent or transferred to some other employer. In the state of emergency, their superior can require from public servants overwork up to 20 hours a week, but a maximum of 80 hours a month. For the time of the epidemic, the regular rules on working time, breaks, and rest period no more apply for public servants. In return, public workers exposed to high health risk or overcharged with duties have the right to a special bonus of up to 100% of the hourly rate. The government determines the allocation of bonuses among public organizations, while superiors decide about who gets allowances and in what amount

Use of measure

Intervention measures to mitigate the effects of the SARS-CoV-2 (COVID-19) infectious disease epidemic on citizens and the economy Act (ZIUZEOP) Measures cover all public employees and are temporary in nature, lasting only for the time of the epidemic from 13 March to 31 May
