Background Information

In accordance with section 9 Employment Contracts Act (55/2001), temporary lay-offs of fixed term employees are not possible unless "the employee is working as a substitute for a permanent employee and if the employer would be entitled to lay off the permanent employee if the permanent employee were working."

In order to make businesses' adaptation to the new market situation, the right to lay off has been temporarily extended to cover fixed-term employment contracts. The same conditions apply as in the case of lay-offs of employees with a permanent contract.

Content of measure

This measure covers all employers that need to temporarily lay off employees with fixed-term contracts during the period the temporary provisions are in force. Employees may be laid off when the potential of the employer to offer work to its employees has diminished (either temporarily or permanently) and the employer cannot provide the employee with other suitable work or training. Due to COVID-19, the notice period for lay-offs is shortened and during the period the temporary provisions are in force, employers need to be informed of the lay-off no more than five days before the lay-off begins.

Not applicable to the following employers: the State, municipalities, KELA, Åland Government, Evangelical Lutheran Church or Orthodox Church.

This measure does not involve any direct financial support but it makes adaption of workers to the new market situation easier as the right to lay-off is extended to fixed-term contracts.
