Background Information

An institution of permanent seasonal work was introduced in 2001. A fixed-term employment contract for a permanent seasonal job obliges employers to pay contributions for their seasonal workers throughout the year and obliges employers to offer their employees new employment contracts for the following season. According to the Act on Labour Market (OG 118/18) a permanent seasonal worker is entitled to financial assistance for a maximum of six months after termination of employment, and the employer is entitled from the Croatian Employment Service to financial support intended for financing contributions for extended pension insurance.

Content of measure

The Parliament accepted the Law on Amendments to the Act on Labour Market (OG 32/20) which prescribes the authority of the Governing Board of the Croatian Employment Service in the case of special circumstances to decide on: a) prolongation of the entitlement to financial assistance for permanent seasonal workers; and b) to enable the employer co-financing the costs of the extended pension insurance. Currently, the Governing Board of the Croatian Employment Service has not decide about the mentioned changes. During extended insurance, the worker receives 100% of the minimum wage in the first 3 months (gross monthly wage in 2020 is HRK 4,062.51 or € 541,67), and in the next 3 months 50% of the minimum wage.

Use of measure

Every year around 8000 people obtain the status of a permanent seasonal worker, mostly in tourism and a smaller part in agriculture. As majority of the will not find a job in tourism this year, probably around 6000 will apply for the mentioned right.
